DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

Applicant's amendments filed 1/22/2007 have been received and reviewed. That status of the claims is as follows:

Claims 3-8 and 11-27 are pending. Claims 3, 11, and 17-23 have been withdrawn from consideration by the applicant.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claims 4-8, 12-16, and 24-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rappoport.

Regarding Claims 24-27

Rappoport discloses a method and medium comprising managing a product, comprising:

- extracting product management information in a first form, wherein the product management information comprises information regarding the managing of the product and the first form is associated with a first source computerized product management system (at least abstract: product design data for source system extracted from source system)

- converting the product management information in the first form, wherein the converting the product management information in the first form converts the product management information in the first form into product management information that is in a second intermediate form (at least column 10, lines 1-8: data converted into intermediate form and stored in bridge structure)
- converting the product management information in the second intermediate forma wherein the converting the product management information in the second intermediate form converts the product management information in the second intermediate form into product management information in a target form the product management information in a target form corresponds to a target computerized product management system (at least column 5, lines 1-16: intermediary form converted to target form for target system)
- the second intermediate form comprises a list of product elements for defining a hierarchy of data elements (at least column 5, lines 24-35: intermediate form can preserve parametrics, features of design)
- using the product management information in the target form to perform at least one computer-implemented act from a set of computer-implemented acts comprising:
  - creating a new product record in the target computerized product management system;

Art Unit: 3625

- o updating an existing product management record in the target computerized product management system (at least column 5, lines 36-46: once in target form, design can be manipulated/updated)

Rappaport does not specifically disclose that the data being stored and converted in the method is product management information.

However, these differences are only found in the nonfunctional descriptive material and are not functionally involved in the steps recited. The extracting, converting, and using steps would be performed in the same manner regardless of the data. Merely labeling the data in a specific manner would not alter the functionality of the claimed method.

Thus, this descriptive material will not distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art in terms of patentability, see In re Gulack, 703 F.2d 1381, 1385, 217 USPQ 401, 404 (Fed. Cir. 1983); In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579, 32 USPQ2d 1031 (Fed. Cir. 1994).

Further, the examiner notes that Rappaport teaches using CAD systems for handling enterprise resource planning data (see at least column 1, lines 43-52), which is equated in product management information in the present specification.

Art Unit: 3625

Regarding Claims 4-8, 12-16

Rappoport does not specifically disclose the hierarchy of specific data elements claimed.

However, these differences are only found in the nonfunctional descriptive material and are not functionally involved in the steps recited. The extracting, converting, and using steps of independent claims 24 and 26 would be performed in the same manner regardless of the data. In other words, no matter the format or makeup of the product management information, the same steps would be performed. Merely arranging the data in a specific fashion or labeling the data in a specific manner would not alter the functionality of the claimed method. Thus, this descriptive material will not distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art in terms of patentability, see In re Gulack, 703 F.2d 1381, 1385, 217 USPQ 401, 404 (Fed. Cir. 1983); In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579, 32 USPQ2d 1031 (Fed. Cir. 1994).

Response to Arguments

In response to applicant's assertion that the applicability of Rappoport has not been applied with the requisite specificity, the Examiner notes that the cited sections of Rappoport have been more clearly equated to the claimed limitations in the rejection above.

Applicant's further arguments with respect to the combinations of references rejecting claims 4-8, 12-16, and 24-27 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
